Just Imagine . . .

New rules, two new principals, and many new friends. Students awaited these things and more on the first day of school.

After a fun filled vacation, students once again faced the reality of returning to school. Summer became just another memory as we set foot through the doors.

What the coming year held remained a mystery to all. We could just imagine...

"The part of school I like the best is Algebra II. I like working the problems."... freshman Cherese Vines

FOOD, GLORIOUS FOOD

Individuals seek peace

AAAAHH, LUNCH! The favorite class for most everyone. Most students and teachers liked to get away from the stress of school during their lunch break. Besides trying to remember when the next class started, most people enjoyed a fulfilling 50 minutes to relax.

The town offered a variety of resturants to choose from to eat. If a car became available, it usually served as transportation to go to any of the meccas around town or even to go home.

"I go home because it's a lot cheaper, and I can save my money for the weekend," senior Sally Stanfield said.

If a car or a ride was not at hand, students could stay in the commons for lunch or walk across the street to the convenience store. Many spent time at lunch to study or to get help with homework.

"Sometimes I spend my lunch in the commons, finishing up my homework for the next class," senior Tyne Pratt said.

Relaxation and stress relief became a major reason for leaving campus for lunch. Teachers and students liked the break away from each other.

"It's good to be able to leave school at lunch to get a break from all the stress," junior Chris Starling said.

In early November, the Superintendent Dr. Jim Gunn wrote a column in the local newspaper, Williamson County Sun, to state that he wanted a closed campus for the 1992-1993 school year. Students and teachers had their own different opinions on this matter.

"Why has everyone else been allowed off campus, and now they decided to do something about it my SENIOR year," junior Jennifer Owens said. by Mary Eli

TIME? Checking her watch, sophomore Melissa Prellop looks to make sure she will to class on time. A watch came in handy after the numerous time changes for classes.

LET'S LEAVE NOW. Getting ready to leave school for the precious 50 minutes allowed for lunch, junior Elizabeth Murray and friend head out to a car to catch a ride. Students and teachers found rides to various resturants during this break called lunch.

YEA I KNOW. Listening to one of her friends, senior Tracie Heidemann tries to pay attention, since it is something worth listening to. Students often gathered to talk about the day's events either in the commons or outside.

FRIDAY MORNING FEVER

Pep rallies help raise school spirit

Loud noisemakers invaded the gym on Friday mornings as the student body gathered in the new gym to wish good luck to the cross country runners, the volleyball team and the football teams. Other sports such as basketball also received pep rallies.

The cheerleeaders spent many hours decorating the gym for the Friday morning pep rally and various athletic locker rooms on Thursday nights.

"Decorating is long and tedious, but it's fun," varsity cheerleader Rhanda Raeke said.

When the tutorial/activity period arrived, pep rally time changed from 8 a.m. to the 10:25 activity period. With no school time lost, everyone could attend. The number of students attending pep rallies increased.

"I like having pep rallies during the tutorial period instead of in the morning because we don't have to get here so early for band, and I feel like more people come to support the teams," junior Angel Nettleton said.

Though many students chose not to attend, those who did thought that pep rallies were a "blast."

The senior class decided to do something special for the last regular football seson pep rally. Each senior could participate by holding a candle to form a '92 on the gym floor while senior members of the choir sang the senior class song "Imagine."

"It was the middle of the song before I realized that I was supposed to be down there," senior Brad Hickman said. by Carmen Paulsen

"I feel like more people come to support the teams during the day than in the morning," junior Angel Nettleton said.

ROYALTY, VICTORY, AND SHOUTS OF GLEE

Homecoming scores big with students both on and off the court

As Homecoming drew near, members of student council sold mums, and decorations transformed the halls over night. Students began to arrange dates, and anticipation could be felt in the air.

The long awaited day brought the familiar sights and sounds of mums and cowbells to ordinary surroundings, while predictions of the nights annual Homecoming game began shuffling around campus. Excitement peaked at a tremendous level and curiosity arose with even the slightest mention of the halftime activities and the coronation of the 1991 Homecoming Queen.

At halftime, 35 nominees and escorts joined the band on the field and awaited the naming of the new Queen.

As a hush fell over the crowd, Gary Foust, the assistant band director, announcd the Court: Fifth Duchess Kandi Kitchens, representing Girls Cross Country; Andrea Cavender representing Student Council as Fourth Duchess; Carly Curtis placed third, representing Boy's Basketball, followed by Jill Boles in second for the Cheerleaders. Representing Choir, Tiffany Taylor placed as first duchess.

"I was flattered, but totally shocked," Curtis said about being chosen and becoming third duchess.

The announcment that the crowd had been waiting for finally fell upon them. Whispers of excitement came from inquisitive onlookers as the announcer exclaimed, " representing Boy's Cross Country, Sunshine O'Neal as the 1991 Homecoming Queen." O'Neal recieved the official crown and sceptor from the 1990 Homecoming Queen, Amy Blakely.

The second half of the game polished off the high spirited night, giving all in attendance something extra to cheer about. The Eagles beat the Bulldogs 14 to three.

"I'm glad we won this year," varsity center Geoff Moran said.

SUMMER ENDS, CHANGES BEGIN

Students outlast changes

Many alterations made on the school policies came with the addition of two new principals.

The new administrators included Principal Gary Crowell and Assistant Principal Charlotte Montgomery, who became the senior class principal. The returning principals included Jack Sharp as junior class principal, Dwayne Lennox as sophmore class principal, and Brenton Hughes as freshman class principal.

The addition of new administration members brought the inclusion of other changes, such as, the saying of the Pledge of Allegiance every morning of the school year, and the Council of Presidents, a group of students, who put in their ideas on different subjects.

The State Legislature added five days to the school year making it one of the biggest changes of the year. A majority of students did not approve of the addition of these days.

"I think that we're in school enough,"senior Courtney Evans said, "and I think it is ridiculous for them to cram extra material into five more days."

Last year's tardy policies transformed into new ones. The policy stated that the students had the allowance of only five tardies per semester. Those who went over their limit had the requirement of attending In School Suspension, ISS.

Those who failed to buy a parking sticker ran the risk of having their vehicle towed away. Although many students bought their parking stickers, a few used stickers from family or friends.

"I didn't have to buy a sticker," senior Stephanie Kramp said. "I'm using my boyfriend's old one."

Starting November 3, a tutorial period was added to the school day. That gave students a chance to relax before their third period class or to receive help from teachers. This tutorial period gave students a chance to bring up their grades, so that they could continue participating in extracurriccular activities.

"I think it's great because you're rewarded for doing well by being allowed to see your friends," junior Kristy Cain said, "but you also have the chance to go in for help."

FALL FESTIVITIES FIND FUN IN OCTOBER

Students participate in Halloween, Spookfest, and Dia de los Muertos

Clowns, babies, dragons, and lady bugs walked amongst the uncostumed students on Halloween. Although the rules had changed and limited the students creativity with their costumes, many students came to school clad in costumes of all varities.

"I thought the rules were ridiculous! Halloween is supposed to be scary! And come on, how terrifed can you get of a sixteen year old guy with fake blood on his face?" sophomore Kara Wickson said.

But nevertheless, students got into the Halloween spirit along with the teachers. Chemistry teachers performed experiments with eerie touches for their classes. The experiments ranged from smoke bombs to fire on water.

Not to leave out the hometown celebration, the square offered Harvestfest (previously known as Spookfest). Booths were erected on the square streets including arts and crafts, goodies, face painting and hairstyling.

"I thought it was fun. I liked the haunted house. It was kinda corny, but that made it even more fun," sophomore Shelley Schooley said.

The day after Halloween, Spanish classes celebrated Dia de los Muertos. Also known as the Day of the Dead in Spain. This is a day commemorating loved ones that have passed on.

The commons annex was decorated with an alter and other colorful ornaments commemorating the deceased.

"It was really interesting. I liked learning about it and that's very rare," sophomore Brandi Boyd said. by Angela Rigsby

MANY MILES FROM HOME

Foreign exchange students find differences in new land

Foreign exchange students traveled from Germany, Yugoslavia, Japan, and France to attend this school. Most agreed that the decision to come to America had been a tough one, but in the end, a good idea.

All of the foreign exchange students discovered differences between their countries and America.

"Here the car goes right. In my country the car goes left, very different," Japanese student Taku Yamamoto said.

They also found several differences between schools and their schools back home.

"I never expected to find in the land of the cowboys, a school of the cowboys, too," Yugoslavian student Simionida Tomic said.

Many of the foreign exchange students established a new home in America.

"Georgetown is a very nice little American town," German student Henning Moersen said. "It's what I expected from America. I like it, and I'll surely miss it when I go home."

REAL HOBBIES

Daring, fun, and rewarding

When no work or chores to be done existed after the school day ended, students often filled their spare time with hobbies. Some people made hobbies out of anything they enjoyed doing.

Senior Chuck Smith liked to fish.

"The things I like best about fishing are drinking something cold, sitting on the river, and hooking a seven pound bass," Smith said.

Fishing and hunting were practically related. When someone picked up one as a hobby they usually become interested in the other.

From the natural outdoors to backyard garages, people could find a hobby anywhere. Either after hours of fishing or hours of restoration, the compliments received for the mounted bass or the shining truck proved enough reward.

"Since I found my truck on the road dead, it needed a lot of work, I have spent a few "G's" and now it reminds me of a '69 Classic," senior Derek Monell said.

Hobbies did not need to involve work or yield reward. Some hobbies were just for thrills.

"Cliff diving and skiing is a great ways to spend afternoons and weekends,"senior Justin Bohanan said. "I like the cold water, cold beverages, and the pure exhilaration."

The thrills came just as strong whether riding the air, waves, or a horse. A cowboy loved his rodeo, which often evolved into the hobbie part of ranch work.

"You get an emotional high when the bronk jumps out of the shoot," junior Shannon Casady said. "I get to meet new people, travel, and all around just have a good time." by Kolby Shipman

"JINGLE BELLS"... FRIENDS FOR ALL SEASONS

People seek out companions for various reason

Eternally bonded through all of life's little miseries. That is what friends do for each other.

"I cherish all my friendships and try my hardest to make all my friends feel loved!" sophomore Heather Rose said. "I know they do the same for me."

Whether it is for love, money, or pure compassion, people choose to bond with one another.

"I would be in a relationship for love because that's what my life's all about," sophomore Missy Thomas said.

Sometimes, a particulary beautiful relationship would bloom into love, and a couple would form.

"That's how it all began with me and Jason," sophomore Felicity Sagan said.

However, sometimes friends of the opposite sex formed the strongest bond and endured the high school experience together.

"One of my favorite people is Stimpy. He's taken such good care of me, and always gives me moral advice and support," senior Kristin Deluca said. by Kristin Costello

MAN OR WOMAN

Does anyone really know?

To be woman or to be man - that is the question. Sometimes it was just too hard to figure out, especially in this pageant.

Nine contestants of questionable gender performed for an audience on January 25 at Williams Middle School. This fund raiser, sponsored by the Spanish Club, raised money for scholarships.

"I love it. It's great, clean cut, laughter. It is the funniest entertainment done by this school that still does something good for other people," judge for the event and math teacher Tally McAferty said.

Each club could chose a lucky senior "guy" for this beauty pageant, but only if they passed all of their classes. Spanish teachers Senora Susan Smith, Senora Yolanda Almaraz, and Senor Earl Martin sponsored the event.

In the talent competition the talents ranged from singing, to dancing with or without a partner, to working out. After a short intermission the "ladies" pranced their stuff in gowns that they chose to reveal even more of themselves to the judges and audience.

After the scores were tabulated, hosts Jennifer McInerney and Jill Boles announced the five finalists: Idreama Genie (Rick Kahabaka from Choir), Lula Prance (Todd Holubec from NHS), Fay Gott (Jason Carter from Spanish Club), Queen of Jamaka (Jason Cordi from Speech), and Pat (Dave Napier from Talon).

"It [Pat] was a hard character to act out," Napier said. "You have to always think whether a statement would classify Pat as a male or female."

The interview competition completed, the contestants relaxed while Epiphany-Sexay (Joe Cordi) took "her" farewell walk.

Ima Airhead Kodiak (Jason Delleney) received the award for Miss Congeniality for "her" great looks and clear skin. Lula Prance (Todd Holubec) took home the Most Talented prize for "her" wonderfully choreographed Hula dance. The announcement came that all the "ladies" and audience waited for, Miss Año Nuevo----Pat, who imitated Pat from Saturday Night Live.

"I'm glad that the 'best woman' won, but the Queen of Jamaka should have won," senior Jason Cordi, who played Queen of Jamaka at the pagent, said. by Mary Eli

It was a "Black Tie Affair," but the attire more commonly worn was a smile.

"Coronation was great,"senior Michael Nowlin said.

Master, Robbie Bacchus, and Mistress, Khrisslyn Goodman, led the ceremony.

"Once Matt Shell and I switched tuxes everything went pretty well," junior Robbie Bacchus said. "I had a great time."

The class favorites received attention first. The freshmen chose Suzanne Koy and Josh Hittman. Sophomores once again chose Christy Hodge and Damon Caraway. The junior class chose Tiffany Hubby and Chad Whiteside. The seniors chose Sarah Blanchard and Brandon Currey as their class favorites.

While seniors Kandi Kitchens and Andrea Cavender sang "If These Walls Could Speak," the announcement of Mr. and Miss GHS occured. The nominees for Mr. GHS were Richie Elsasser, Wess Blackwell, Todd Holubec, and Matt Shell while Tracie Heidemann, Hanna Hurst, Kristen Posey, and Nikki Sikes hoped for the title of Miss GHS.

"It really surprised me when they announced the nominations, " senior Tracie Heidemann said. " Being backstage was so hilarious because we were acting so stupid."

After the nominees had their high school accomplishments read, Wess Blackwell and Kristen Posey obtained the titles of Mr. and Miss GHS.

BREAKING OUT

Spring brings week of fun, rest, relaxation

"Time out"- The time had finally come. No school nor teachers for a whole week. Different vacations and different kinds of fun time awaited students. Some students left for the whole week to get out of town.

"During Spring Break I went hiking at Enchanted Rock - got sun and saw some cute guys," sophomore Stacey Weirich said.

A few left early the week before Spring Break actually started. They went out of state with their parents or friends. Some students stayed in town.

"It was a blast, but it would've been even more of a blast if it lasted longer," senior Bubba Leaseman said.

Spring Break was mostly cool, but very sunny.

"It was fun at the beginning, but boring at the end, " junior Jennifer Anschutz said.

PERFORMERS WOW AUDIENCE

Talent show contestants a hit with all ages

Laughter filled the new gym for "Wayne's World," standing ovations flooded the scene for the hip-hop dancers, and the audience sang along to popular songs.

The 10th annual choir sponsored talent show took place Friday, March 13 after auditions a few days in advance.

Auditions were held and judged by members of the choir and choir director, Bruce Johnson. A few acts were to be cut so the show would not run too long and to be sure acts were acceptable. Tension ran high before tryouts.

"I was so nervous before auditions," sophomore Kenny Glaser said. "I just hoped we made it past that."

In the end, 20 acts ranging from an episode of "Wayne's World" by seniors Chris Liner and Walter Perry, to versions of "Patience" and "Lovesong" by the band, Four Backup, performed at the show.

"We basically just did it for fun," band member senior Randy Lee said.

Scores were tabulated and winners announced. The singing duo of senior Kandi Kitchens and sister, sophomore Kristi Kitchens, took fourth place. Junior Erin Fullenwider won a spot next to dancing sophomores Kenny Glaser and Justin Delk in a tie for third.

Second place went to Sadia Ahmed for her dance talents, and Chainsaw Daisies received first place for their rendition of "Knockin' on Heaven's Door."

Band members included freshman Evan Webb, sophomores Paula Laubach, Zach Morsbach, and Stephen Johnson, junior Daniel Gray, and senior Chris Janak.

"It was such a rush," Laubach said. "Even parents were standing up clapping and all of us were like, 'Whoa!' It was great!" by Angela Rigsby

PROM DOES AUSTIN

Dresssing up is hard to do

Primping and looking their best awaited the prom goers on May 9. The majority of the students became extrememly excited about the prom since the junior class finally convinced the principals and the School Board that it would be all right to have the prom in Austin.

Many students believed that going to eat in Austin, then driving back to go to prom, and then eventually back into Austin for after prom parties for more entertainment caused too many problems and too much trouble.

"I am so glad they had it in Austin this year, because there was so much more you could do afterwards since you did not have to drive that far," senior Tyne Pratt said.

The prom started at 9:00 pm at the Red Lion Inn. The junior class turned the hotel ballroom into a tropical paradise to match the theme Tropical Treasures.

Pictures stopped being taken at 11:00 and prom glasses were handed out at 12:00 so there would be an incentive for the prom goers to stay.

"I stayed long enough to get my glasses, because the people I was with did not want to leave until after they had gotten their glass," senior Demeree Gambell said.

Many seniors and juniors along with their dates thought this was the best prom ever.

"I hope we get to have it in Austin again next year, it was so much better than having it in Georgetown,"junior Jami Holland said. by Mary Eli

Seniors '92-The Future

Graduates find themselves ready to face it

The day finally came that all the seniors of 1992 long awaited. That day, of course, was graduation day - Saturday, May 30, 1992.

Seniors did not have to arrive at the field until 7:45 p.m., but several showed up early in order to find a good parking spot and for their families to find a good place to sit.

"I made my parents bring me early, so I could see all of my friends, and it gave them a chance to get a good spot to park," senior Tyne Pratt said.

Since graduation did not start until 8:00 p.m., some graduates had their relatives and friends over for a barbeque or just a get-together. Others waited until Sunday afternoon to celebrate the graduation activity.

"My father stayed up all night to cook brisket on the grill for my family and friends to enjoy Sunday afternoon," senior Lori Leinweber said.

Graduates offered many prayers to make sure it did not rain because the seniors and their parents did not want to have the ceremony in the gym.

"It would have been a difficult choice to make, chosing which relatives got to see me graduate if it had rained," senior Shannon Meyer said. "I am so grateful it didn't rain."

After the ceremony ended, the seniors had the choice to go to the annual party given by Parents for Pride at the Community Center. Some seniors left the graduation ceremony and the after graduation party with mixed emotions.

"I am glad I am finally out, but I know I won't miss it that much," senior Jason Smith said. by Mary Eli

GOOD LUCK... Hugging each other for good luck, seniors Andrea Cavender and Traci Calta pause before the actual commencement activity to wish each other the best. Before the ceremony began some seniors congratulated each other for making it that far.

WE FINALLY GOT RID OF THEM... Laughing with delight, teacher LaTrell Voss enjoys the festivity along with the seniors. Several teachers dressed in robes with collars of their colleges.

I'VE GOT MY EYE ON YOU... Searching for their graduates, parents came early to get a good place to sit in the stands. Friends and families packed the stands.

WE FINALLY MADE IT... Sharing a moment together before the ceremony, seniors Brad Hickmann and Norma Hernandez laugh at the memories. Grauduates arrived early to see their fellow classmates.

WHICH WAY DOES THIS THING GO... Adjusting her tassel, senior Becky Benson makes sure it is on the right side. Most graduates checked, and double checked to make sure the tassel hung on the correct side.

AS I'VE SAID BEFORE... Giving her speech at the podium, saluditorian Hanna Hurst tells a story about letting go. Hurst thanked her teachers for her knowledge.

USING HER HEAD... After her speech, valedictorian Niki Sikes smiles at her fellow classmates. Sikes also attained honors as a scholar athlete.

I DID IT... Cheering, senior Jason Cordi smiles broadly at the fact that he is finally out of high school. After the ceremony ended, the majority of the seniors celebrated with family and friends on Eagle Field.

WE ARE OUT OF HERE... Throwing their hats in the air, seniors yelled the fact that they graduated. The carnival served as the backdrop for the graduation ceremony.

THE LAST GOODBYE... Taking one last look at the stands and the people in it, teacher Karen Werkenthin says her last goodbye as teacher Carolyn Reed walks along side of her. Werkenthin will teach at the new high school in Round Rock.

"IMAGINE"... Singing their final song for the school, the seniors of the choir sang the class of 1992's song "Imagine." For many seniors this became the time to shed a few tears.

WELL, YOU KNOW HOW IT GOES... Talking to his friends about graduation, senior Jimmy Dyess expresses his feelings about the whole situation. Seniors had time to talk with friends before the ceremony began, since they had to be at the football field by 7:45.

WAITING PATIENTLY... Looking into the crowd, senior Tiffany Taylor searches for someone she knows in the stands. Parents and seniors both searched for each other on the field and in the stands.

I'M FREE... Laughing at a private joke, seniors Sarah Miller and Carrie Minton chuckle as they make their way back to their seats after reacieving their diplomas. Some seniors shared a laugh throughout the ceremony.

SHH!! QUIET TIME

Library Encourages Good Study Habits

Opened in the mornings, during tutorials, at lunch, and after school, the library provided a place for students to study. The library gave many students a quiet place without interruptions, to study or relax.

"It's a real wonderful place when you want peace and quiet," senior Richard McLeroy said.

The library contained numerous books, articles and magazines on many subjects students needed.

"I go to the library to do research for papers in my class," sophomore Will Faris said.

It had a simple system for students to check out books. Every student could check out two books at a time, and keep them for two weeks. The late charge had a low price of $.10 every day after the deadline. To some that did not seem like much, but after several weeks the charge would add up.

Not only students but also teachers found the library very useful.

"I go there to research stuff for my kids, like the Aztecs, and I use the dictionary, the big Spanish one," Spanish teacher Senora Susan Smith said. "I also go there for recreational reading." by Felicity Sagan

From reading Beowulf and Romeo and Juliet to writing the annual research paper, English class accounted for a good portion of students' nightly homework.

"We have a million things to do at once," junior Liz Bennet said. "It's very stressful."

Besides the research paper, teachers required a good deal of writing. Freshmen and juniors prepared for the TAAS test while sophomres and seniors honed their talents for continuing education. Some teachers began use of a book journal in which students wrote about a novel they read. This let students practice writing in a weekly, low pressure situation.

"We do a lot of it, and we hate it, but it all pays off in the end,"senior Chris Janak said.

A few juniors and seniors enrolled in the advanced placement, AP, classes, took the AP English test to receive college credit. Of the 26 who took the test, 20 passed.

Teachers also stressed reading in and out of the classroom. Classics, short stories, and poetry received attention in class. Sustained Silent Reading (SSR), fondly nicknamed "Sit Down, Shut up, and Read" by its founder, AP English III teacher Karen Werkenthin, provided an hour a week for reading a non assigned novel during class.

"The reading is good, especially if you have a book you really like," junior Matt Wayman said. by Jonathan Meyer

PAST AND PRESENT

Social Studies Offers a Variety of Courses

History helped students learn from the mistakes and triumphs accomplished by their predecessors.

Freshmen chose between either World Geography or World History. World History taught about cultures and civilizations around the world. World Geography concentrated on the physical geography and environments of the world.

Juniors had to complete two semesters of United States History. This history course gave an oppurtunity to find out about this country's developments since the beginning of the Civil War.

"I found U.S. History to be really easy. We learned about the developments of the U.S.," junior Khrissyln Goodman said. "Even though I fell asleep during the lectures, I still managed to receive the highest grade in the class."

In order to fullfill their graduation requirements, seniors had to master both economics and government. Economics explored the nation's economy and the basic elements of Socialism, Capitalism, and Communism. Government gave seniors an oppurtunity to better understand the basic structures of their country's government.

"I decided to take economics in summer school instead of during my senior year," junior Nicole Harris said. "It's a whole lot easier that way. But I've learned so much about our nation's economy, even though we watch movies most of the time."

Sociology, an elective course, granted students the chance to better comprehend the making of today's society and to explore life in the "real world."

To Sum It Up

Preferences Range from Calculas to Consumer Math

When most students heard the word mathematics, the only single word they could think of to describe it was boring. Other students ranked it as their favorite subject and thought the world of the study of numbers.

"I don't understand it," sophomore Chad Sullivan said. "Adding is the only thing I know how to do."

While calculus occupied the highest end of the spectrum, the vast majority preferred the eaiser path. Pre-algebra appeared popular with many freshmen who wanted an eaiser class to lighten their fresh load of courses.

"Pre-algebra was pretty easy last year, but because I concentrated so much on my social life, I almost failed," sophomore Keith Litterst said.

The teachers who taught this subject played a major role in whether or not the information was absorbed into the students' heads.

"My teachers have been excellent in the past," sophomore Jimmy Johnson said. "To me, math can be so exhilerating!" by Heather Rose

YOUNG EINSTEINS

Scientists Learn Laws of Nature

Science used to imply something disliked by most people, but now science is an interesting part of everyday life.

Students in their first year of high school took physical science as a "refresher course" from earlier courses.

"I liked doing labs they were fun," freshman Keith Kaderka said.

Biology, usually taken by sophomores, handled the fundamentals of human and animal life. Students in biology studied the chemical and structural organization of living cells.

"Every class period was a memorable experience with Coach Baskin," sophomore Amanda Polasek said.

Biology II covered areas not in Biology I, such as the anatomies of cells, animals, and plants.

Chemistry, the next course of sciences, combined thoeries and concepts of inorganic Chemistry accompanied by practical application in the laboratory.

"Chemistry was hard at times, but Mrs. Krenek's spirit demonstrations were really fun to watch," junior Dawn Bean said.

For those who desired to enroll in it, Chemistry II offered an advanced study of chemistry, while reinforcing concepts from Chemistry I.

For those wanting to pursue a science carreer, Physics covered an indepth study of energy, matter, and motion.

"Physics was enjoyable because Mr. Hudsputh is one of the most entertaining teachers in the school," junior Ella Bredthauer said.

These science courses also allowed students to experiment with and test projects created in class.

Even though some students disliked these required courses, many enjoyed learning more about the sciences.

FROM THE DRAWING BOARD

Husband and Wife Team Carry on Their Artistic Talents

He teaches art, she teaches drafting... the Kleinhans. This husband and wife team-brought their artistic talents to the high school.

From bookwork to drawing to paper mache, art students learned about the history of art, its present form, and of those most known for their artistry.

Art students began to understand terms and its importantance in today's society. Art teacher Robert Kleinhans helped students gain the knowledge and the ability to draw or paint anything and to use their imagination in these endeavors.

"One of the most important things I've learned this year is how to sketch a person's face," freshman Angela Wright said.

Using the drafting table instead of the drawing board, drafting teacher Susan Kleinhans taught Drafting or Manufacturing Graphics, a class that appealed to future architects and engineers. The class required skills such as accurate measurement and special relations.

"I think that it takes lots of determination and patience to perfect my work," sophomore Todd Snead said.

Students learned to use tools of drafting and acquired skills that could be applied in other classes on projects and presentations.

"I believe Manufacturing Graphics and Construction are courses from which most everyone can benefit," drafting teacher Susan Kleinhans said. "Future engineers and architects will obviously gain the most information from this course."

FOR THE FUN OF IT

Foreign Languages, Fun and Educational

By the time most students finish high school, they have finished two years of a foreign language. Students could choose from French, German, Latin and Spanish.

"I'm taking Spanish because I heard it was fun and all my friends are taking it," sophomore Holly Carlson said.

Spanish remained popular, but other languages increased enrollment. Latin set a record year by having four classes.

The appeal to foreign languages often fell on the teachers.

"It's fun because I like the way Frau Schultz teaches (German)," sophomore Catherine Brown said.

The language classes did something they had not done in recent years. At Christmas time the classes held a Christmas Expo. Each class told about the customs of the language and the country they studied.

All in all the main reasons for taking a foreign language were for the fun of it and for college.

"The most fun in class are the test. Parquoi? Court," junior Shelli Bush said.

FROM ABACUS TO THE FUTURE
Computers Teach More

It was not that long ago that students used tools other than computers to get their work done, and it usually took a longer amount of time. Use of slide rules, printed tables and calculators accompanied pens and paper.

Computers have come a long way. Students called something up on a computer by looking in an electronic encyclopedia and picking the subject they want. Computers became a must to stay competitive at work.

"I remember when I was happy with a 10 Meg. hard drive," junior Bruce Blair said. "Now I need my 320 Meg drive."

Many people have decided they could not live without their computers

"There is never a day that I don't turn on my computer and use it for something," sophomore Sam Pritchett said.

An important advancement in computers included the use of them by schools. Computers, no longer for advanced students only, gave students personal tutoring to learn at their own pace.

Administrators used them for record keeping and grades. These tasks would take great numbers of people and valuable time.

Some students feared the computer, but then in the early 1900's, some also feared the car.

"I don't have a computer, and I don't want a computer," sophomore Lisa Morton said." I would not know what to do with one!"

Computer labs, computer classes and the extra help computers provide, made computers items to be studied, learned, and respected.

ON-THE-JOB TRAINING

Vocational Classes Get to Work

Welding, auto mechanics, general construction and agriculture gave students hands-on experience. In addition to providing them with valuable skills and training, the vocational classes gave them on-the-job training in several career areas.

In auto mechanics the students learned how to diagnose a variety of car problems. They learned how the car functions and how to repair and replace a number of parts with many tools. This class helped prepare students for a career in the mechanics field.

"It is fun because we get to work on our own cars and on teachers' cars," junior Nick Raum said.

Their teacher, Jesse Lozano, assigned specific days to their schedule. Book work and class discussions took place on Mondays and Tuesdays. Wednesdays and Thursdays the students worked on customers' and teachers' cars. If they had finished their work, on Fridays they could work on their own cars.

"I've never had to use anything I have learned on my truck, but I know that I could if I ever had to," senior Chip Edmiston said.

Students involved in general construction classes kept busy throughout the year learning useful skills in the areas of painting, carpentry, plumbing and electrical house wiring. The students built projects during the year for themselves as well as others.

Welding, a two period class developed for students interested in pursuing welding as a career, gave the students an opportunity to perfect their skills. Learning how to use measurements and scales formed a major part in the class.

"There is a lot more to welding than most people think," junior Mike Crow said.

The agriculture class, which consisted of Future Farmers of America members, studied all aspects of technical agriculture. In class they studied crop and livestock production. Outside of the classroom, they participated in livestock shows and meets.

Senior Challenge Day

Seniors glared unknowingly at the buses lined up in front of them. Many had vowed never to set foot on one of the yellow monstrosities again, but out of sheer curiosity of what may lie ahead, one by one they loaded the buses and set forth to Reunion Ranch.

"I didn't want to get on the bus to spend time with my classmates, but I did, and it didn't turn out as terrible as I expected," senior Demeree Gambell said.

In the past seniors had two mornings to sleep in while underclassmen took tests. This tradition ended by the decision of the administrators to provide a senior fun day. Students had mixed opinions about the decision to take away their days of silent slumber.

"I didn't want to go because I don't like group activities," senior Nick Rosenthal said.

On the flip side some were quite optimistic about the journey.

"I prefer going on a senior challenge day than staying in school all day in study hall," senior Heather Kalbaugh said.

The day consisted of a mixture of fun and learning. Lectures were given about drug use, AIDS, and the rights of young people. Entertainment varied from hula hooping to exercises in trust. Students received free lunch from Dominoes Pizza as well as beverages.

There were mixed opinions about the outcome of the trip. On the whole most everyone prefered it to school.

2+2 COURSE ADDED TO CURRICULUM

New to the curiculum, 2+2 courses offered college credit to interested vocational students. During this class, 2+2 Early Childhood Profession, students learned first hand about the many areas of childcare.

This class took a two hour block during the day.

"Two days a week the students travel to their assigned childcare site and observe the children and their behaviors in certain situations. The sites consisted of daycares, nurseries, schools, and special education classrooms," said teacher Kathy Keller.

The students spent remaining time in the classroom, learning how to handle children, responsively and in positive ways.

Not only did 2+2 ECP prepare students for the future in teaching, coaching, and social work, it also prepared them for parenthood.

"I enjoy the 2+2 EPC class, because I've learned what a joy it is to work with children, and now I know that's what I want to do with my life," senior Dusty Byrd said. by D'Ann Knudsen.

THE SENIOR DISEASE

All teachers, principals, and the whole student body know that every school year existed seniors who could not handle the responsibility of being an example for the rest of the student body. Therefore they regressed back to a stage many parents call the "terrible two's."

Seniors experienced feelings of missing out on their childhood, so believed they must make up for it before they hit the real world. (Thank goodness, or else the world would have to put up with pranks, selfishness, and irresponsibility.)

To help relieve this excess energy, many seniors took time out of their teacher's class time to make jokes, harrass other students, and even entertain their fellow classmates. Some seniors thought it necessary to play at restaurant playgrounds, or at any type of amusement item that could be found in the park or in front of stores.

Every teacher and principal knew that there would be several seniors that would become a problem for the school because of this disease called senioritis.

"I think that the seniors feel that this is their last shot at freesom without being held responsible for their actions," senior principal Charlotte Montgomery said.

Many seniors experienced feelings of extreme laziness, and of being tired so much that they could not do their homework or pay attention in class.

"Of course I never had senioritis the end of my senior year, I had it all year long, like most of my classmates," senior Demeree Gambell said.

Head of the Class

Fulfilling the jobs of a junior class officer took responsibility. Preparing for the different events sponsered by the junior class also took cooporation and time.

"Being a junior class officer was a great experience for me," junior class representative Lina Valdez. "It was very hard work, and took a great deal of time."

The junior class organized the event of the year, Prom. They worked together with parents, school officals and students to have prom at the Red Lion Hotel in Austin.

"From the beginning of the year, we had our minds set on having a Prom in Austin and we worked hard to get there," Valdez said. "It was a very sucessful year, and Prom was a great experience being in Austin, and I hope it will be there for many years to come."

Besides organizing prom, they organized many other fundraisers. For Spring Break they had a t-shirt designd, by a junior, and sold them as a fundraiser.

"It was a great privilege for me to be asked to design Spring Break T-Shirts this year," junior Elizabeth Bennett said. "Besides, it is extremely rewarding to see my artwork floating all over the city."

The class officers for the 1992 school year were President Shea Daniel, Vice President Sadia Ahmed, Secretary Lina Valdez, Tresurar Alica Braun, and Represantives Laura Hanner, Angie Craig, Michelle Cox, and Jennifer Revering.

"All of the officers worked really hard this year to get Prom in Austin," junior class representative Laura Hanner. by Carmen Paulsen

Strange Places

Walking into an unfamiliar classroom, knowing you are the only new student there can be distressing.

"I found it hard to make friends because I was lonely," freshmen Cherese Vines said.

Adjusting to their surroundings and making new friends faced new students on their first day in a new school .

"It's different from what I'm used to," junior Sarah Ortiz said. "But I think it's exciting to go here."

Some thought that moving from a small school was not as great as they thought it would be. Some found it to be even better.

"It was hard at first to make friends," freshman Piper Delleney said. "But it got easier as time went on."

Transferring to a new school seldom came easy for students. Some blended in quicker than others, thanks to students showing an interest in helping new ones.

Everyone knew how it felt to be a new student some time in their days in school, whether it was their first day of kindergarden or as a transfer to a new school. by Shirley Landry, Carmen Paulsen, Elizabeth Pope

What "Junioritis" means...

COME ON... Trying to finish her homework, junior Karla VonMerz finds help from junior Patricia Kelm. Students sometimes found loyal friends to help them make it to their senior year. photo by John Martin

Those who invented the word "junioritis" knew the term meant a disease that struck juniors who cannot hardly wait to become offical seniors.

"I can not wait until I'm a senior because I can rule the school, and I'll be almost out of here," junior Jennifer Anschutz said.

It was hard for many juniors to realize that they had almost out of here and many of their daily habits would become memories in just one year. Doing the things which they hated and going to the same classes day after day made a few of those habits.

"I want to savor each experience because I know it will be my last year," junior Elizabeth Bennett said.

The thing that might be missed by many students after the one year remaining ends will most likely their friends. Some seniors might not be alone in their last year because of a younger family member who will come to school here.

"I'm not looking forward to next year because my little brother will be a freshman, but I am looking forward to my last year here," junior Dawn Bean said. by Carmen Paulsen

The Asphalt Jungle

Many moons ago the automobile became readily available to the public. Its purpose? To act as transportation, to get people from one place to another. With the automobile came the parking lot. This piece of land intended for parking cars evolved over time into a world of its own.

Shoe polishing occured in the parking lot as a seemingly harmless prank friends pulled on one another by writing nicknames or slogans on car windows with shoe polish. The real joke came when the owner of the car tried to remove the polish from the car windows.

Socializing also became one of the mainstays in the parking lot. Conversation upon conversation took place before and after school. With topics ranging from homework to television programs.

As an alternative to the school hallways, the parking lot became a place to talk to friends, to catch up on the latest gossip, and a place to park cars. by Tammy Tomeff

Hanging Out

ANYBODY THERE?... Hungrier than cows, sophomores Erica Surrency, Chad Sullivan, Michael Wolf, and Winston Pfiester place their orders.Many students liked to hangout at Sonic on theweekends and especially at lunch. photo by Kyle Alston

Hangouts formed a vital part of any high school student's life, and here it was no different.

Although not known for its great hangouts, a few did exist in the area.

In the summer just about anywhere became a hangout, places like Lake Georgetown, San Gabriel Park, and even Russell Park.

Several hung out at 7-11 or wherever someone happened to be having a party that night.

"I just like to go up to 7-11 to see what's going on," sophomore Chad Sullivan said.

Sullivan had several parties himself.

During the spring, many students liked to take drives through San Gabriel Park.

"When the weather is nice I love to drive through the park," sophomore Justin Hudson said.

In the summer those who liked the outdoors hung out at the lake, either to ski or just to relax at Russell Park.

"The lake is a lot of fun, but then anywhere is fun in the summer," sophomore David Acosta said.

Whether spending the day at the lake, taking a nice drive through the park, heading to 7-11 or just cruising through Sonic, hanging out always meant fun. by Kyle Alston

HOW PRETTY!... Kneeling to smell the sweet aroma of the flowers, sophomore Kristi Kitchens gathers them for her flower collection. All Biology I students had to collect flowers for a major grade. photo by Stacey Weirich

Collecting for the Grade

In the fall Biology I students collected bugs. In the spring the students collected flowers.

Most students favored the flower collection over the bug collection.

"It's a whole lot better than the bug collection," sophomore Kristi Kitchens said. "Flowers don't move when you touch them or come back to life."

Thrity-five flowers had to be picked. In the end flowers had to be neatly pressed and labled.

"The flower collections have been fun, the only thing I don't like is pressing them," sophomore Amanda Jones said. "It's hard to find thirty-five different flowers.

When all was completed, students were glad to be done. Most felt that they had learned something.

"Flower collections are easy and fun!" sophmore Lisa Volney said. "I have even learned the flowers' names. I recognize them now and know what they are when I see them." by Stacey Weirich

Fun in the Sun

Many students scarcely had time to breathe during the nine week summer vacation. Everything from going out of town to just hanging around were sampled over the break.

"I spent two weeks in Iowa, came back home and layed out by my pool," junior Jennifer Jones said.

Some students chose to sleep late and just take it easy on vacation; while others chose to get up and make some money by working. There were some benefits to going to work, but there were downfalls too.

"It puts money in my pocket but leaves no time to unwind," senior Todd Holubec said about working during the summer.

This summer wasn't fun in the sun for everyone. Volleyball and football players began their summer pre-season workouts in the mid-August heat.

"I really had a fun summer, but because of two-a-days I had to really try and stay in shape," varsity volleyball player Laura Hanner said.

The band also began rehearsing in August for competitions and half-time performances. Dedication to the band was expressed in the heat of the day.

"I couldn't do things with my friends at night, but I guess in the long run all the hard work will pay off," sophomore Michelle Hancock said.

In between work, summer school, and travel most all students agreed that even a few moments of relaxtion were well appreciated. by Carmen Paulsen

WOW!... Eagerly watching a baseball game at the Astrodome, sophomores Amy Nielsen and Erica Surrency concentrate on the men on the field. Students found many interesting things to do during these three months of summer to entertain themselves, either in town or out of town.

HOLDING ON TO THE MOMENT... During tutorials freshman Kristie Ratley and Melissa Marshall laugh together while enjoying spending time with each other. Friends gathered into their groups to visit during tutorials if they were not failing any classes.

Friends Are Forever

Everyday new friendships blossomed to flourish into close life-long relationships, and high school was where most of them began. To most students friends and their social life came before studies.

"I'd rather be out having fun with my friends than stuck at home with a textbook glue to my face," sophomore Shannon Stonebraker said.

Even if grades dropped from staying out late on week nights or projects did not seem to make the due date, most students juggled the two things equally.

"Friends to me are a group of people that charish moments and will never forget each other," sophomore Normalinda Hernandez said as she smiled and hugged her best friend Ofi Ortiz. by Heather Rose

A GOOD NIGHT ... In what has become an annual event during the regularly scheduled School Board meeting the third Monday evening in May in the board room of the Central Office, the School Board honored junior and senior high school students who had excelled in either academic, athletic or performance skills. Board members Marty Tyree, Nancy Benold, Board President Charles Steger, Superintendent Dr. Jim Gunn, Jeff Morrow, Dr. Kenneth Hunt, and Gene Lawthon smilingly acknowledge the recipients in the audience. The Office Crowd

IN THE MOOD ... Preparing for the season, principals' secretary Patty Williams adjusts the bow at the top of the Christmas tree, located in the principals' outer office. Williams decorated the tree two weeks before the Christmas/New Year holliday. photo by Brandon Currey

Prior to the Christmas holidays, principals' secretary Patty Williams left her desk to decorate a Christmas tree in the principals' outer office.

"I had access to the tree and to the decorations," Williams said. "I don't decorate for all the holidays, just for Christmas."

Williams held down the outer office while Assistant Principal Jack Sharp had the first inner office and new Principal Gary Crowell occupied the second, larger, office.

"I enjoy working for Mr. Crowell tremendously," Williams said. "He is an excellent administrator."

Assistant Principal Brenton Hughes administered from the South Wing office with Lois Vasquez as secretary.

Located at the intersection of the two front halls, the office of Assistant Principal Dwane Lenox offered easy access to the library and to traveling students.

New Assistant Principal Charlotte Montgomery worked from her office located in the North Wing.

Next to the main office, the attendance secretaries Paula Brotzman and Mary Ford shared the attendance office with office aides.

Behind the main office, Barbara Barr secretaried for counselors Larry Loudamy, Robert Foster and Barbara Ikonen and registrar Yvonne Graham.

Hello Again

Ring... ring...ring

"Georgetown High School."

"Oh, Mrs. Rocket, would you ... ?"

"Mrs. Rocket, could you ...?"

"Mary Jean, I'm ill. Please tell Mr. Sharp I need a sub," an under-the-weather teacher might have asked.

Mary Jean Rocket smiled an answer as her smile showed in her voice.

"My husband said if she ever needs a job, he has one for her," Spanish teacher Susan Smith said. "He thinks her voice is friendly and says she is so nice over the phone."

For over eight years the first voice people heard when they called the school to report an ill child or to seek information was that of Rocket.

She punched buttons that connected the callers to whomever they called. She took messages for teachers who taught classes and added little smiley faces to the messages.

Her duties were not limited to the switchboard. A typewriter sat at a 90 degree angle to the phone system, and a stack of papers stood nearby. Frequently she served as a collection agency for returned report cards or any other item on, or off, the agenda.

"I love my job," Rocket said. "I enjoy dealing with the public and being up here with the kids."

Runners Sweep Region

Ask them about the regular season. Talk about District or Regionals. But do not ask about State.

The cross country boys and girls swept District 18-AAAA. The Eagles won all divisions, JV and Varsity.

At the Regionals Cross-Country meet in Pasadena, the Eagles boys missed a first place finish to A&M Consolidated by three points. The girls finished up first, topping everyone.

The golf course at Southwestern University set the scene for the State Meet.

The girls came in with a sixth place at the meet, though they had five freshman and two seniors.

The boys team's performance at State was not up to its expectations nor its talents.

"Despite the disappointment, it was an overall good season," sophomore David Boram said.

"The team came together at the right time," senior Rick Carlisle said, "but we could not defeat the final challange."

Although the season was relatively injury-free, some people had injuries like junior Robbie Bacchus who suffered from a sprained ankle. Also, senior J.C. Anderson had abdominal surgery.

"The best part was running when I knew my gut was falling out of my racing shorts," Anderson said .

As for overall performance of the Cross-Country team, senior Aaron Langenegger summed it up.

"It was a memorable season in which we all had triumphs and defeats," Langenegger said. by Winston Pfiester

Varsity Volleyball Proves Itself to District & State

The Human Wall... Trying to block their opponents, juniors Lauren Maxwel and Eowyn Buchan stretch for the ball. Playing the net was effective against spikes and hard returns. photo by Brian Powell

After a successful tournament, pre-district, and district schedule, the Eagle's varsity volleyball team proved to everyone that they were as good as any team in the district by advancing to the Area eliminations of the state volleyball tournament.

The season began with several pre-district wins to get the team on a roll.

"This season was my favorite because our old team was back together again and ready to prove we could play," senior Heather Kalbaugh said.

The Lady Eagles started district play not favored to go on to playoffs. They became noticed as they polished off team after team.

The teams from the Waco area did not slow the girls down any. Belton, Midway, and University all fell in two sets. Leander did not pose any challenge as they were also defeated in two sets . Belton gave the Lady Eagles their only loss in a tough three set game. The district was quickly mopped up four more victories over Midway, Leander, University, and Taylor.

"We started hot and finished hot," senior Nikki Sikes said. "It was lots of fun because we knew we could play at the level of some good teams."

The team then advanced to bi-district against Chapel Hill. The Lady Eagles now had to work for every point they scored. It took the Lady Eagles three high-scoring sets to put Chapel Hill down for the count.

The New Caney team at regionals was no less demanding. After the 5 - 15 loss in the first set, it looked almost hopeless. However, the second set was nearly reversed as the Lady Eagles won 15 - 4. The final set was a hard fought 15 - 10 victory for the Lady Eagles.

Area proved to be the summit of the Lady Eagles climb to the state finals. The team from Katy Taylor overpowered the Lady Eagles in the first set with a 1 - 15 win. The Lady Eagles tried to come back, but just couldn't do it as they lost the second set 9 - 15.

The Lady Eagles had nothing to be ashamed of, though. They were the first volleybal team to advance this far since 1985. And that in itself was something.

"Making it to playoffs was a great triumph for our team," Kalbaugh said. "Especially since no one thought we would even make it out of district." by Jonathan Meyer

DETERMINATORS

JV and Freshman Volleyball Pound Competition

A new season meant a new stepping stone for the freshmen and junior varsity volleyball teams. Players accomplished their goals as a team, while they all met new personal challenges.

Diane Davis coached the junior varsity and Carl Spruill coached the freshman. Having these two new coaches brought many new aspects to the game.

"It's nice and very unusual to have a season in which the problems come as a result of too much talent," Coach Davis said.

The junior varsity team came together and produced an exciting record of 9-1 in the 18-AAAA district.

Sophmores continued a four year winning streak of 54-2 which began in seventh grade.

"We've won district for four consecutive years since seventh grade," sophmore Shannon Sivertson said. "Our team has always stuck together. This year was GREAT! "

In its first year of high school volleyball, the young freshman team finished with a 6-4 record.

" It was a great season. We learned a lot from the upper classmen," freshmen Brittany Powers, Sara Mersiovsky, and Marion Neary said. "We are proud of the way they came out in district, and we are looking forward to next year."

Playoffs:
Corsicana	L 12-19

After compiling the best regular season record in 6 years, the varsity football team earned its playoff birth as district champions for the second time since moving to 4-A last year.

The team began the season with key victories. Even Crockett and old 5-A archrival Westlake felt the fury of the "Big Blue Wrecking Crew" as late game rallies nearly put the Eagles into the undefeated column.

With a overall record of 7-2-1, the Eagles quickly became a playoff contender.

"I thought we had a very good season - every game was a good one," senior Monroe Meador said. "It was all very important because it is our last year to play in high school. Going to playoffs two years in a row was pretty exciting."

The team was made up of a large number of returning lettermen. The returning upperclassmen helped the team pull through several tough games.

"I thought we did very well this season, considering the number of injuries and the lack of depth," senior Mike Tippitt said.

Their near perfect season was cut short by Corsicana. At halftime, it looked hopeless. However, the third quarter produced a new team. The offense sprung into action, and the defense shut the Tiger's offense down. Tension mounted as the scores came closer and closer.

But the second half rally was cut short by the clock, and suddenly, the season was over.

What started in early August was over by mid-November. The team hoped that they would be playing longer, though.

"We had a really fun year, but unfortunately, it had to end earlier than we wanted it to," senior Wess Blackwell said. by Jonathan Meyer

HOLDING ON

JV Finishes with Winning Season

Winning more than they lost, members of the Junior Varsity football team posted a winning season. After opening with a 28-0 victory over Del Valle, the JV won five and lost four with one game cancelled.

"Our season record of 5-4 does not show all of our hard work and determination," sophomore Brian Puska said.

The JV players had high hopes of being district champions, but as the season ended, they had not accomplished their goal.

"It was hard for everybody, but we pulled through," sophomore Derek Seaback said.

Despite its record, the team received some much needed experience for many of them will be varsity players.

"By the end of the season, we had improved 110%," sophomore Kyle Alston said. by Alvin Lankford

LADY EAGLES ARE ON THE BALL

Varsity Basketball Drives to State

The Lady Eagles stayed in the thick of the year-long playoff race that ended with a second place silver medal in the 4-A State basketball tournament.

"We are all real excited about our post-season ball games," senior Kristen Posey said. "Last year we let it slip from underneath us with only one game left for the gold."

The Eagles became more like a family than a team. Even off the court, the girls supported and helped one another. This made the group a very strong team.

"Each teammate is friend, and that makes it so much easier to play on the court," senior Carly Curtis said. "I could not ask for anything better."

Talent alone is not what has brought the Lady Eagles this far. Many hours spent each week in practice.

"We're not going to let all of our hard work, hours in the gym and at camps in the summer summer go to waste," senior Shawna Ford said. "When all is said and done, there was nothing but a good time had by all."

"I just hope our gym will hold a state championship banner to remind every one," Curtis said.

Unfortunately, the dream did not come true. The Lady Eagles lost a heartbreaker to Randall in the 4-A finals. After compiling a season better than last year's, the loss really hurt. by Thomas J. Scholle and Jonathan Meyer

DREAM SEASON

JV Girls Sweep District; Fresh, Runners-up

The Lady Eagle junior varsity and freshman basketball teams finished the season with records of 6-0 and 7-3. Each team experienced "the stuff that dreams are made of" as teams and as individuals.

The JV finished as District 18-AAAA JV champions with a district record of six wins and no losses. The freshman ended as runners-up for the district title.

"I think the thing that made our JV so strong was the fact that we practice with the varsity every day," coach Kellye Richardson said. "Keeping up in practice with the second place team in the state of Texas is no easy task."

Several of the JV team members doubled as varsity players. De Ann Porfirio, Nicole Coronado, Kerrie Edgar, Shannon Sivertson, Tami Selle, Kim Stary, and Cyndi Woodliff played on varsity, mostly in the state playoffs.

The junior varsity team participated in the Austin JV Tournament, the Pflugerville JV Tournament, and the Mason Varsity Tournament.

They took first place in the Austin tournament, second in the Pflugerville Tournament, and defeated three varsity teams to take first place in the Mason Varsity Tournament.

"The Mason Tournament was the most memorable trip we had all year," junior Kerrie Edgar said. "We beat three varsity teams, I got punched in the face, and we stopped at Dairy Queen on the way home."

Then came the district season. The freshman finished with a record of seven wins and three losses .

The freshman traveled to two tournaments in Pflugerville and Austin.

The team took second place in Austin by defeating McAllum, LBJ, and Pflugerville, and loosing a hard fought game to Westlake.

"Our freshman team did very well this year and really pulled together as a team," coach Jill Warren said. by Kimberly Johnson

EAGLES SOAR

Boys Basketball Travels to State Finals

Some called them the "Cardiac Kids" or the "Miracle Kids." No matter what they were called, the varsity boys basketball team made a new name for themselves throughout the state of Texas.

"A lot of people doubted how far we would go this year, even some of the players and coaches," said senior post Todd Holubec.

With a tough pre-season schedule, they faced and defeated teams such as L.B.J. and Westlake. Their pre-season record was 14-6. After defeating some good teams in the pre-season, the Eagles looked ahead for an easier district race.

To their surprise, district wasn't that easy. Their district record was 8-2 with losses coming from Waco University and Belton.

The Eagles finished runner-up to University and went to the playoffs once again.

The Eagles first opponent in the post-season came against #4 in the state Jacksonville. At the end of regulation play, the boys went into overtime. With the last few seconds ticking away, junior Jason Jones put up a reverse lay-up to win the game.

"When the ball fell into my hands, I just shot it and hoped it went in, " Jones said.

That win advanced the Eagles to Area. They faced a good team from Crosby and played after the girls Regional semi-final game in Katy. After an early lead by Crosby, the boys turned up the heat and won the game 92-81.

Advancing to the Regional semi-finals against A&M Consolidated in Baylors' Ferrel Center, the boys were hyped up. Once again coming down to a missed-last-shot-attempt by A&M, the Eagles won 75-72.

The Eagles became the first boys team in Georgetown history to advance this far in the playoffs.

The wins did not stop there. The Eagles Regional Championship game against # 3 Channelview proved that the boys had strength. The Eagles won 68-60 and advanced to the state tournement in Austin.

There they faced #1 Pampa in the semi-final. With a last second shot by Matt Shell, the Eagles went into overtime.

Showing once again that the boys had strength, they went on to win 65-64. Advancing to the finals, they faced South Oak Cliff. Playing a great game, the Eagles lost 60-73.

The Eagles finished the season with a 29-9 record, making their first appearence in the state tournament.

SPLIT SEASON

JV/ Freshman boys basketball gather wins

Boys' Junior Varsity and Freshman basketball offered playing time and game experience to players who did not make the Varsity team.

The year went well for the junior varsity, and it was a good beginning year for the freshman players.

"It hasn't been a bad year," Coach Mark Townsend said. "There is some talent, and there is some room for improvement. The upcoming years should develop them both."

The freshman district record was 4-6, with players like Josh Hittman and Micheal Flannery leading the way for upcoming games and seasons.

The Junior Varsity team showed that there would not be many regrets at seeing all but one of the Varsity players graduate.

The JV season took a 7-3 district record, with memorable wins over teams like Westlake and LBJ. by James Spears

SPLISH SPLASH

Swimmers Get Used To New Swim Coach

Through a change in coaches and coaching styles, swimmers ended the season in third place at district and advanced to regionals.

"I had a very hard time adjusting to the change in coaches," senior Stephanie Kramp said.

Fresh out of college, Paige Harper took Mark Townsend's place as swimming coach. Even though it took some members time to adjust to Harper's changes, they managed to improve meet times.

"We had a great swim year, several school records were broken," senior Matt Stewart said.

A large amount of meet times became new school records. The girl's 200 freestyle relay broke its last year's record with a 2:03.99. Participants in this relay included Catherine Brown, Kramp, Kellie Henry, and Elysia Wright.

Stewart, Justin Hovatter, Derek Monell, and David Matthews worked together to break the boys' 200 freestyle relay with a time of 1:38.08.

Matthews broke two other school records, the 500 freestyle with a 5:03.55, and the 200 individual medly with a 2:12.16. Stewart shattered the 100 freestyle record with a 52:21. Stewart fractured the 100 backstroke record with a 100.16, beating his own record.

"Breaking the backstroke record was really cool. It made me feel like I accomplished quite a goal," Stewart said. "Breaking the 100 freestyle record felt better since that record was set six years ago."

The 12 member team consisting of Brown, Misty Harris, Henry, Hovatter, Kramp, Matthews, Monell, Holly Orton, Brian Russell, Stewart, Angela Wright, and E.Wright all qualified for regionals in either relays or individual events.

"Regionals was the best time I'd ever had, especially when the bed in our hotel room broke," Brown said.

These amphibious students finished their year with pride.

"The season was a good way to finish off the senior year," Stewart said. by Elysia Wright

JV places second in district

With the girls' new soccer coach Butch Spruill came a whole new outlook to the girls soccer season.

"Coach Spruill brought great new ideas to our soccer teams," junior varsity player Felicity Sagan said.

The junior varsity, as well as the varsity, finished with winning seasons.

The varsity ended the season with a record of 9 - 7- 2. The junior varsity girls posted a 10 - 2 record.

They did not lose a game in the Westwood tournament, the only tournament they attended.

"Soccer brings out the competitive spirit in me," sophomore Amy Nielsen said.

From varsity to JV, girls played soccer for a number of reasons.

"When I'm playing, I let all of my frustration out on the ball and other opponents," senior Kristi Philips said.

Coaches Butch Spruill and Tarryl Hyder told the players that they were very pleased with the season.

AGAINST ALL ODDS

Boys varsity soccer kicks its way to State

Experts picked Westlake, Westwood, and Round Rock to finish in front of the boys varsity soccer team, but the Eagles showed the experts that they were wrong.

The Eagles won their district and advanced to the playoffs. They won bi-district, then game after game in the regional tournament, where they beat San Antonio Marshall 3-1 to win the regional crown.

They proceded to Pflugerville for the state tournament, losing a hard fought game to a top ranked Grapevine team.

"Even though they were ranked number one, the whole year, they weren't any better than we were," senior Scott Siragusa said.

The players believed that the varsity's advancement to the final four gave the guys some of the recognition that their record deserved.

The junior varsity also had a winning season.

"We went and tried our hardest, and we won," sophomore Benny Flores, the JV leading scorer said.

The JV had a record of 12-2, with their losses coming at the hands of an undefeated Westlake team.

"The guys' successful team this year prepares them for the transition to the varsity team, which requires a lot of work," assistant coach Henry Ray said.

RACKET IN HAND

Varsity Tennis Swings into Action

Outside it was hot and windy, and anyone walking on the parking lot could hear the sound of balls hitting the rackets. Along the tennis courts, tennis players practiced during seventh period.

They were all juniors and seniors and were all varsity tennis players. In their third year on the tennis team they had high expectations.

Some started holding a tennis racket in their hands when they were six years old. Others started playing in junior-high.

Then it became more serious, class everyday, practice after school and meetings in the first semester to prepare for District competition during the second semester. Their motivation was considerable. Lifting weights and running was a part of their conditioning.

They were aware of the obstacles ahead and of the reward for their efforts.

"I am really excited about this Varsity season. We've been focusing on intensity during workouts," junior Liz Bennett said. "It seems to be building with every match we play!"

Working on the best tactics and techniques was the goal for the beginning of the first important tournaments. The varsity team had a 6-5 record in dual matches and finished 1st in the Waco Spring Invitational.

Of course, they caught the passion of competition but for some team members tennis was more and they found the reward somewhere else.

"I also like tennis because we miss a lot of school. It is a lot of fun. We have the most absences," junior Brittany Cowsert said.

Remembering the intensity of their work, each player gained respect for their team.

"It should be a very rewarding year for all of us,"Bennett said.

JV FRESHMAN TENNIS TAKE SHAPE IN FALL

With the sun in their eyes and their rackets in position, little could stop the JV and freshman tennis players.

Practicing everyday since August, they tried to prepare themselves for the different meets during the fall of the year.

Running, lifting weights, and working on different approaches of the game were a few of the methods used to improve playing skills.

"I think we work really hard for what we get," sophomore Jesse Kelly-Landes said, "and we get what we deserve."

How the teams played in the fall of the year foreshadowed how they would play in the spring, with improvements.

Having a 7-1 record in dual matches, the JV promised a winning future.

"The competition we had was good because it showed us that we either needed work or we were doing fine," sophomore Amanda Jones said.

Winning was not everything.

Coaches Sharon Landry and Kerry Minzenmayer tried to instill good sportsmanship in their players.

The coaches followed carefully the morale of players and their physical ability.

People who played tennis quickly responded as to why they selected this particular sport.

"This is definitely the best sport," Kelly-Landes said.

Golf Season Swings at Success

Despite their disappointment in not advancing to the regional tournaments, varsity golf members believed that they had a very exciting year.

In the fall, the team of Jason Brooks, Koy Killen, Jason McNutt, Eric Zimmerman, and Kevin Naiser finished in third place at the Corpus Christi Invitational.

Jason Brooks took home a first place trophy from the Corpus tournament. He also placed third at the Leander Invitational.

"Winning at Corpus was an honor," Brooks said. "Shooting a 69 in a high school tournament is always special."

Kevin Naiser was a major part of the golf team as well. He finished third at the Bastrop invitational and fourth at the Georgetown tournament.

The district tournament was somewhat of a disappointment for the Eagles.They finished fourth in the three day event. Koy Killen finished as the top local golfer and was named to the all district team.

"We didn't do as well as we would have liked, but we had quite a few good times that I'll never forget!" senior Koy Killen said.

The boys junior varsity team finished second in the JV district. Ryan Tull had the lowest three round total fot the team.

The girls golf team consisted of Misty McNeely, Teri Draeger, Carrey Fallin, Amy Pittsford, Sarah Reirson, Jennifer Revering, Tricia Tate, and Marlane Wingo. The varsity squad finished fourth in district play.

"These girls realized that golf requires a lot of hard work and dedication," Coach Diane Davis said.

STRENGTH IN NUMBERS

Girls Track Has Banner Season

Track Coach Sue Davidson could not find enough wonderful adjectives to describe the girls' accomplishments.

"What an exciting track season for the Lady Eagles!" Davidson said. "Every girl on the team improved many times, jumps, and throws throughout the season."

The varsity and junior varsity teams ended the season as district runners-up and the freshman team accumulated 279 points to place first.

Kim Stary advanced to State in the 800 meter run along with the mile relay team of Cara Broadaway, Sunshine ONeal, Kim Stary, and Kim Schiemenz. Denise Williams and Erin Elsasser went as alternates.

"Five seniors will graduate," Davidson said. "Stephanie Brieger, Sunshine O'Neal, Kristen Posey, Rachael Ramsey and Tammy Szafranski."

The seniors raised the moral, established goals and motivated the enthusiasm of the team which lead to improvement as the year progressed. The team attracted many girls who enjoyed running.

"We had approximately 80 to 90 girls running in every track meet," Davidson said.

Guys Take 3rd at District

From throwing the discus to the 3200 meter run to pole vaulting, boys track performed well all season.

After placing second at the Converse Judson meet, the team traveled to San Angelo where it won third place.

At the Pflugerville meet, another second place finish matched another third place at District.

Six team members including John Zedlitz, Wade Culbertson, Aaron Langenegger, Greg Shelton, Rick Carlisle and Monroe Meador placed in the top three of their events to qualify for regionals.

All of our hard work really paid off as a team," senior Brian Jackson said. "We did pretty good as individuals, too."

Three old school records were also broken. Zedlitz, who placed second in the triple jump at district, hit 45' 5 1/2".

Culbertson pole vaulted 14'7" and also placed second at district. Meador hurled the discus 168' to break the previous record. by Jonathan Meyer

INS AND OUTS

Varsity baseball wins big early into season

At the beginning of the season, the experts ranked the varsity baseball team second in the state.

The team won 20 games, but lost six in district play.

"As a sophomore I haven't seen much playing time, but I'm looking forward to next year," sophomore Damen Carraway said.

As the Eagles went deeper into their season, they headed into district. With just a couple of loses, the Eagles did not play at 100%.

"The boys played hard this year, but couldn't get a hold of district," varsity baseball coach Frank Ibarra said. "Next year will have a lot of returning starters, so we should come back strong."

Most of the guys just enjoyed playing baseball although they participated in other sports.

"I love playing sports, but it's hard to keep the grades up, ' junior Cliff Jaeger said. "Of course mature players such as myself can handle it!" by Bryan Davis

PLAYING THE GAME

JV Baseball ends district at 5 - 5

A team united by a common thread, they all enjoyed baseball.

Although the players believed that they had a rough year, the junior varsity baseball team, mixed with freshmen and sophomores, came out all right.

"We have a young team and we have to work hard," sophomore Brett Joyce said.

Half way through the season, major changes allowed many of the freshmen a chance to play. Because of grade trouble, several players became ineligible to play.

"Everybody played and everybody did a good job," Coach Terry Ebner said.

The star player varied from time to time, often changing from week to week, but the players knew what they needed to work on.

"We have a strong infield but a young outfield," sophomore Josh McCasland said.

VOICES AND HANDS

Student Council accomplishes goals

Student Council, the voice and hands of the student body, acomplished many goals. From organizing dances to regaining privileges, the Student Council did it all.

"They actively promote programs that are against illegal drugs and alcohol, and that is what I truly feel is needed at GHS," junior Angela Hilstrom said.

For example, right before spring break, many members of Sudent Council participated in a Don't Drink and Drive demonstration. Student Council encouraged students to stay sober while on their spring break.

Student Council also helped to oganize a tutorial period during the school day and helped to regain the one minute bell. They also encouraged students to start petitions for keeping the campus open for lunch.

"The tutorial period gives me the chance to do my homework, or just relax," junior Kim Johnson said.

To end the year members took a trip to L. D. Bell High School, outsiae of Dallas, to visit with its Student Council and then to Six Flags in Dallas for some fun.

"Student Council was successful this year because we had excellent leaders," sophomore Drewe Hoppe said. "I especially look forward to being an officer next year." by Ivy Tomjack, Nicole Gilbert, and Ruth Langenegger

Marching Forward

Band survives changes and stays on top

The band underwent many changes, including transformations in marching styles, with the addition of Gary Faust, assistant band director.

"At first I thought all of the changes were stupid because we went all the way to fourth in state last year," sophomore Jamie Harvey said. "But I think it really helped the band, as a whole, perform better than we did last year."

Faust conducted most of the morning rehearsals and demonstrated the new styles which the band learned for its performances.

"Mr. Faust brought changes in the style of marching and was patient for everyone to catch on," senior Stacey Buchhorn said. "I think he has made band more exciting, and he gives great pre-contest pep talks."

After placing third in the preliminary competition, the band went on to earn fourth place during the University Interscholastic League State finals.

"I was disappointed because we worked so hard and the band directors said that we could do better than we did last year, and instead we did the same," senior Ashley Jensen said.

Even though many band members were disappointed after receiving fourth place in state, others felt they had performed a show worthy of state acknowledgement.

"I wasn't disappointed because we worked hard and did the best we could, " senior Bethany Kulp said. "And if state recognition, whether first or fourth place isn't good enough, then I don't know what is."

Though competition played a big part of marching season, it was not the only part. Playing at the football games gave students a chance to perform in front of a crowd.

"Marching at the football games gave me a chance to practice the show in front of a lot of people so that I wouldn't be so nervous at competition," freshman Brian Mohon said.

Even after the competitions had ended, the band supported the football team by playing in the stands during the play-offs.

"After State, I still enjoyed going to the football games," sophomore Brian McAnulty said. "We were able to goof off more, and the cool part was that the directors didn't care what we did."

Marching season provided other benefits to the performers.

"I enjoyed marching season! I went to all the games for free," freshman Wesley King said.

Choir, not just a class for fun, taught members how to control their voices. Members of the mixed choir and show choir used their talent to always strive to be the best.

"It took a lot of self-discipline and effort to become the best," senior Tiffany Taylor said.

The director of the choirs, Bruce Johnson, pushed the choir classes to the best of their abilities. Johnson continued to give support to each member of the choirs through encouraging words and high spirits.

"Mr. J's strong enthusiuasm made us look forward to competition, because we knew that we were the best," senior Kandi Kitchens said.

During competition choir members had to strive to give it their all. Competition continued with UIL (University Scholastic League) contests and contests in Houston for the show choir and in Tennessee for the mixed choir.

To collect the money to go on these trips, the choir and choir boosters raised funds with car washes, paper drives, the school store, the sale of tickets to school events and carol-o-grams during Christmas time.

In the meantime, choir members continued to practice and received experience by performing for local groups.

"I believe the quote,' practice makes perfect,' because the more we practiced, the better we got, and dedication is all it takes to win," senior Kristen Rossow said.

STEPPING HIGH

Georgettes dance to national rating

Starting practice in the 100 plus degree heat of summer, the Georgettes attended daily practices in addition to going to Southern Methodist University team and officer camps.

For fundraisers they held car washes, bake sales, and ran a junior Georgette camp.

"Going to the SMU dance camp this summer" was the most interesting thing sophomore Debbie Benner said that she did. "I met a lot of neat people from other drill teams as well as getting closer to people in G'ettes."

After the summer fun of bake sales and car washes ended, the Georgettes worked on football halftime performances.

Senior Tiffany Taylor said her memory of halftime became "1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8."

When the football season passed, the Georgettes worked on dance routines for the San Antonio Spurs' competition. The Georgettes received a grand champion rating and danced during the Spurs' game.

"Dancing at the Spurs' game in front of 16,000 plus people was really excellent," junior Jennifer Alvarez said.

The Georgette escorts carried the Georgettes' bags and props and looked after them when they traveled to other schools.

The Georgettes participated in National competition in Dallas where the squad received the Sweepstakes award and the officers received a Division I rating.

"G'ettes take a lot of sweat and tears. Many people don't understand the hard work that it takes to put on a good performance," Benner said. "In the long run, the feeling you get when you walk off, knowing you did your best, more than makes up for the hard times." by Andrew Andreasen

LIFTING SPIRITS

Cheerleaders Inspire Teams To Victories

As a summer of relaxation wound down for the student body, cheerleaders pumped up for a long school year. They sold ads, painted signs and went to camp.

"Before we went to camp, we weren't very good friends, but by the time we came home, we had grown to be the closest friends," junior Alicia Braun said.

The varsity attended camp at TLC, Texas Lutheran College. They received best all-around squad, most spirited squad and first runner-up All American Squad.

The Varsity squad also had four members named to the All American Cheerleading Team including Jennifer McInerney, Rhanda Raeke, Jill Boles, and Stephanie Peak.

"Being on JV this year has been great!" sophomore Lindsey Coulter said. "As a squad,we couldn't have gotten any closer. We are all like sisters! Cheerleading is a lot more work than it appears. The hours we put into are unbelievable, but every minute is worth it."

The junior varsity also attended camp at TLC. The JV squad received the T.E.A.M. award on the second day from other squads and everyday received the spirit stick.

"Jennifer Jones was named the most improved mascot, nominated as one of three JV's in the award of excellence finals," Braun said.

The varsity and junior varsity squads competed at several contests as well as competing at camp.

The junior varsity placed at regionals and received a bid to national competition. The varsity cheerleaders went to National competition in Dallas where they placed 45 out of 300 squads.

"We went into competition without ever doing the whole thing perfect the whole way through, when everyone does everything as they are supposed to," senior Mauri Donahey said.

Cheerleaders made signs and banners as well as thought up the different themes for the pep rallies. The pep rally themes ranged from Beach Bum to Backwards Day.

The cheerleaders also cheered at all sporting events and pep rallies.

"The time we spent together are moments always shared and memories never forgotten," freshman Kristie Ratley said. by Andrew Andreasen

SPEAKING THE LANGUAGE

Bonjour! Hola! Guten Tag! Vale! Hello, Good day, from all different languages. Students learned all the languages and could be involved in a club that celebrated that language.

The clubs had fund raisers throughout the year to help support the club and the things that went along with the clubs, for example scholarships and trips.

"We've had a lot of fundraisers in hopes that we could have our banquet at Chez Nous in Austin," French Club Secretary Mary Waschmann said.

Each club had its own way of raising money. The French club had many cake sales during the year, but they were not just any type of cake. They were French pasteries or French cakes.

The Latin club sold candy grams at Christmas time. "Mrs. Mugford is great," junior Blake Kimbrough said. "She really adds to the club."

The German club sold good luck charms. All the fundraisers went to help the clubs' bank account and sent some of its memebers to competition. Jennifer Parker placed fifth in prose reading, and Shelley Schooley placed fifth in the culture test.

"German club was smaller this year, because the classes were very small," president of the German club Jessica Dobransky said.

The Spañish club's fund raiser, Ms. Ano Nuevo, raised money to go straight back to the students in scholarships. Members handed out seven scholarships, having raised around $900 in their one fund raiser.

"We have such a good response to our fund raiser, and it all goes back to the kids in the form of scholarships," Senora Susan Smith said. "I just hope more people come next year to Ms. Ano Nuevo so we can hand out more scholarships." by Shelly Fredrick, Kelly Homeyer, and Mary Eli

Drama and Speech Act on Instincts

Members of the drama and speach clubs spent hours before, during, and after school to practice and perfect their performances. They preformed in competitions and for the school. The students who participated in these clubs played parts or debated topics.

"I enjoy speech," senior Jason Cordi said, "It gives me a chance to express myself."

The drama club preformed two plays "The Foreigner" and "Mother Courage and Her Children." Drama teacher Carla Hooker not only directed the plays but also taught Radio/T.V./ Film classes and drama classes. Students who were in drama class often joined the drama club to help with plays.

"Plays are a lot of hard work but they are fun to perform." sophomore Andrew Andreasen said.

The drama club practiced from 4:00 to 6:00 P.M. everyday preparing for each perfomance.

"Mother Courage and Her Children" performed the play for University Interscholastic League competition.

The speech club members had many out of town competitions.

"The traveling was hard, getting back so late and all, but in the end it was all worth it," sophomore Suzi Kiser said.

They competed in debate, prose, poetic, dramatic, and houmorous oral interpretations.

SWEATING IT OUT

Publications preserve memories in words, pictures

Sweating to make deadlines, the staffs of the Talon, the Eagle's claw, and Aerie, the Eagle's nest, published Eagles' activities from the classrooms to the playing fields.

"Making deadlines was difficult," junior Carmen Paulsen said. "Sometimes we made it. Sometimes we didn't, but most of us tried."

Both staffs designed pages, wrote stories, printed photos, and planned sales campaigns.

"We worked really hard all year, and it always felt good when we got an issue out," junior Angel Nettleton, Talon editor, said.

Some staff members sold ads while others put together the pieces of the puzzle that became a publication.

"Yearbook is harder than most people realize, but the fun of having a part in the school yearbook makes up for the hardwork," junior Betsy Pope said. by Jennifer Anschutz and Carmen Paulsen

PALs: A POSITIVE PROGRAM

Peer Assistance and Leadership group establishes role models

"The PALs program is a peer helping program in which high school students are trained to work with younger students either on their own campus or from junior high and elementary schools"... sponsor Holly Barrett

To help students have a more positive school experience, PALs, the Peer Assistance and Leadership Program, tried to fulfill several goals, such as preventing drop-outs, avoiding drug and alcohol abuse, and providing individual and group support.

"PALs makes me feel good about myself," senior Norma Hernandez said.

The students in PALs recieved instruction in listening skills, group communication, referral services, decision making and tutoring skills. They attended retreats, conferences and heard many guest speakers.

"It makes me feel good knowing I'm helping make someone's life better," junior Angel Nettleton said.

PALs did many things during the course of the year, like going to middle schools and participating in a Big Brother/ Big Sister type program. They also made an anti-drug presentation and participated in various activities, such as tutoring, self-esteem building, decision making, and listening.

The PALs sponsor, Holly Barrett assisted and guided the PAL students.

Students of the Week

If students picked up trash, opened doors, or just did something nice in general, they had the opportunity to be selected as a student of the week.

The program, implemented in December by Principal Gary Crowell, was a way to recognize students for their citizenship.

Teachers nominated the students whose names were placed into a box in the main office.

During the week, names were drawn out of the box. One student from each grade level was represented.

"It's open to everyone," Crowell said. "It allows students who might be overlooked to be recognized for their efforts."

Students selected recieved T-shirts, Eagle pride lapel pins, certificates, congratulation note to the parents, their pictures in the entrance of the school and in the Williamson County Sun, their names on the message center in the commons, and their names read on Friday morning announcements.

HEB donated $200 to cover half of the cost of the T-shirts, and Herff-Jones donated the Eagle Pride lapel pins. by Guy Stserling

THE FUTURE OF AMERICA

Some clubs just consisted of monthly meetings and social events but in Future Teachers of America and Future Farmers of America, they were responible for certain daily activites. In Felloship of Christian Athletes they grew together as much more than just friends.

Future Teachers of America had its hands filled when teaching kids at the elemetary schools. They attended the elementary classes Tuesdays through Thursdays. Mondays and Fridays were set aside for mechanical skills.

"At first, I really didn't think I would like working with kids everyday but it turned out to be an exciting challenge," senior David Heine said.

Carolyn Reed, FTA teacher, taught the FTA members how to use the Xerox machines properly and how to construct bulletin boards. Patience and responsibility became a major part in the class when working with the kids.

When someone first looked at the leters FCA, which stands for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, they may have thought of a group of over religious bodybuilders who get together every week to pray for the outcome of the next big game.

FCA was not at all like this image which most peole have of it. Like all organizations, the members played games, learned from each other and also had serious talks.

FCA was more than games; however, it was also a time of seriousness and prayer.

"We had many guest speakers who were very interesting to listen to," senior Richie Elsassar said.

The speakers would cover topics such as drugs, alcohol, etc.

FFA, one of the largest organizationsis, kept growing. The FFA, Future Farmers of America, helped in the aid to keep agriculture and farmers from vanishing out of their country.

"I feel that the FFA is one of the best organizations we have, because we try to help the agricultural situation as much as we can," senior Dusty Byrd said.

Many students were not aware of what FFA was all about.

"You get to meet a lot of people, see a lot of animals, and show what you know," junior Kelly Gallagher said.

FFA went to many showing events, placing high in ranking.

"FFA has a great team for showing," sophomore Jason Smith said. "I just hope I can get over my fear of hogs and join them!"

Some organizations helped students prepare for the real world, others helped students learn more, but the FCA, the FTA, and the FHA helped the future of America by teaching the students how to help the furture. by Amy Neilson, Heather Rose, Shannon Marion, Bubba Leasman, Carman Paulsen, and Mary Eli

FUN FOR THE FUTURE

Home Ec teaches life skills, job training

Not all clubs prepare students for the future as noticeably as FHA-1,FHA-2, and HERO.

HERO, a Home Economics club, gave students not one but many different paths for a carreer to choose from. The classes associated with these clubs taught the necessary skills of food production, clothing, management, and child-care. All of which provide promising futures.

"I think it'll help me later on in life," junior Arthur Torres said.

For on the job training, FHA-1, Future Homemakers of America-1, became the club to choose.

To be a member of HERO or FHA-1, the student had to have approval from the teacher, be at least 16 years old, and be able to provide his/her own transportation.

"It's a nice break from the normal classes," sophomore Jill Collier said.

For FHA-2, Future Homemakers of America-2, one needed to have one year of Home Economics, as well as recomendation from the teacher.

"We like it 'cause we don't have to do much work," sophomore Juanita Elizondo said.

BUSINESS WITH THE PROS

VIP'S Donate Skills

Volunteers are Important People, VIP's, joined forces with the teachers and staff in order to make high school easier going.

"They save us a lot of time," English teacher Eula Sharp said. "In addition to all the paper work that they do, they keep a class whenever needed."

It all began several years ago when mothers no longer participated in PTA. Since the PTA did not exist past the sixth grade, many parents got together to form the VIP's, first in the junior high, then in the high school.

Parent Elaine Caskey had always been in some type of parent organization. She helped start the VIP program as a co-coordinator and said she was pleased with the teacher and student support.

Nancy Snead, who worked mainly in the counselors' office, also served as a co-coordinator.

"We wouldn't have gotten a good start without this lady," registrar Yvonne Graham said.

Many of these ladies are not just V.I.P.'s but mothers, friends, relatives, or just someone to talk to.

"Mrs. Snead is the most efficient, helpful, and courteous parent I've had the privilege to meet," English teacher Betty Johnson said.

MAKING THE MOST IF IT

UIL Literary Competition Challenges Mind and Dedication

On Spring Break Tuesday, and the average student slept, dreaming about his/her vacation, wondering what the rest of the day would bring.

For members of the University Interscholastic League academic teams, their day was decided by the District meet at McClennen Community College in Waco, Texas.

Competitors spent some Saturdays and a day of Spring Break at meets. Somtimes these competitions could be fun, while other times ...

"It really was not so bad having to give up weekends to do this," junior Angel Nettlleton said. "I think it has been worth it, because we had so much fun on the trips."

Students entered various competions, ranging from speech to mathemathics to headline writing. Three practice meets in February and March gave a taste of the "real thing."

"I hated getting up at 6 : 00 in the morning for the practice meets but I guess it was worth it," junior Adam Parrish said.

Region proved to fun and sucessful for many. Two students, Melisa Crow and Adam Parrish, advanced to State, in Austin on May 9.

"I was shocked to hear I got third at state," Parrish said. "I just had a feeling I'd do ok at regionals, but I was really surprised at state." by Carmen Paulsen

Dear Stephanie -
What do you say to a daughter who has brought us so much "joy"? - A daughter who has given us so many happy memories as she has grown and so much pride in all she has become? Maybe you just say "Thank you, Stephanie."
We hope you understand how much you are loved.
God Bless You,

Remember When...

In late August, shortly after school started, the old guard of the Soviet Union held a coup and nobody came. Russian President Boris Yeltsin stood atop a tank and helped to foil the coup. The Soviet Union disolved into a shaky federation of independent nations which left Mikhail Gorbachev without a job.

Magic Johnson retired from pro basketball but remained on the Olympic team.

Boxer Mike Tyson went to jail.

Anita Hill testified before Congress concerning the Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas who eventually received the position.

President George Bush won the Republican primaries after a small threat from columnist Pat Buchanan. Arkansas Governer Bill Clinton won the Democratic primaries, and billionaire Ross Perot permitted his name on the ballot if enough registured voters signed petitions.

The rains came to Central Texas... and came... and came in the winter, into the spring. The surplus of water flooded Lake Georgetown, closed the lake parks, which still had not opened by graduation. Downpours brought seventh period announcements such as "Busses cannot run to McSheppard Estates. Students living there should find their own transportation."

The Texas Supreme Court ruled against the State Legislature's Robin Hood plan for distributing education funds.

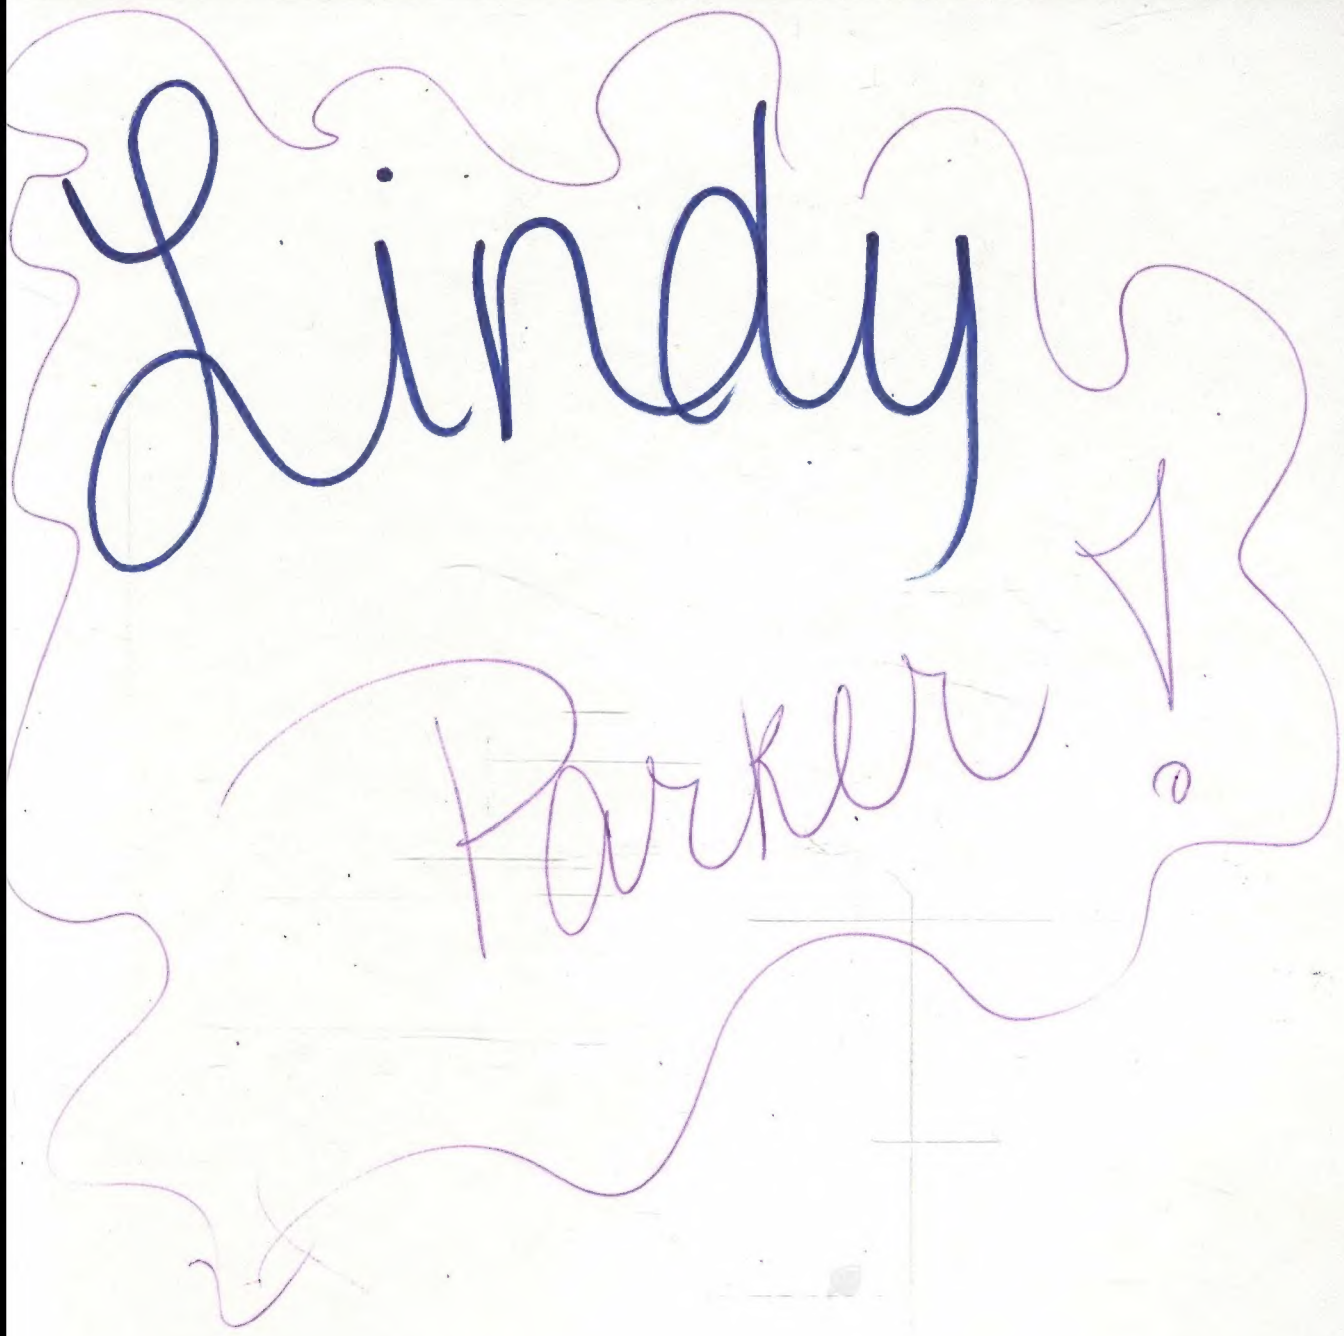
Just Imagine...



Jostens Publishing Company printed the 46th volume of the Aerie yearbook. The staff would like to thank Frank Oman, Josten's representive, for his assistance, time and patience with the staff. Using the darkroom to produce all black and white pictures, staff photographers and photojournalism students took all pictures, with the excepetion of class photos taken by George Giddeon and Associates of Delmar Studios. Staff members designed the cover, all layouts and graphics, developed the theme with fonts Zaph Chancery and Times and pasted up pages, using Pagemaker 2 on Macintosh computers.
